BEFORE ANYTHING GOES IN

1. Check the exact school-approved tool and account.
2. Scan for direct and indirect identifiers.
3. Prefer blank, public, fictional, educator-owned, or approved neutral sources.
4. If unsure, stop and ask the named school contact.

GREEN / YELLOW / RED

GREEN: blank templates, public facts, fictional examples, approved neutral materials.

YELLOW: internal documents, high-stakes translation, de-identified records, regulated decisions, or unusual detail combinations.

RED: student records, identifiers, identifiable work, grades, rosters, behavior, health, disability, family, or confidential staff information.

REVIEW EVERY OUTPUT

Accuracy: What is true, assumed, missing, or invented?

Bias: Whose context is treated as default?

Appropriateness: Are tone, level, accessibility, and format right?

Alignment: Does it support the task, local guidance, and professional goal?

THE HUMAN DECISION LINE

The assistant may draft, organize, reformat, summarize neutral material, and offer options.

The educator keeps instructional judgment, student-level evaluation, grading, communication approval, accommodations, safety decisions, and final use.

The assistant drafts. People decide.
